

Rebecca LaFleur Biography 2013

Rebecca grew up in Connecticut and earned her Bachelors in Molecular and Cell Biology at the University of Connecticut. After graduation, she decided to pursue a career in medicine and is currently a fourth year veterinary student at Tufts University. Rebecca's interests within the veterinary medical field include population medicine, animal welfare and infectious diseases. She is excited and grateful to have been given the opportunity to attend the USAHA/AAVLD meeting to explore the varied opportunities available to veterinarians in public practice.
