
Panayiotis Loukopoulos Biography 2013

Dr Panayiotis Loukopoulos (Panos) is currently a second year pathology resident at the San Bernardino Branch of the California Animal Health and Food Safety lab of UC Davis. Originally from Athens, Greece, he studied Veterinary Medicine at Aristotle University in Thessalonica, Greece, followed by postgraduate studies and a PhD in Comparative Oncology at the University of Queensland, Australia, on canine osteosarcoma. This was followed by two years of postdoctoral work on pancreatic and liver cancer genomics at the National Cancer Center in Tokyo, Japan, after which he returned to Aristotle University as a lecturer of veterinary pathology.

In his spare time, Panos enjoys catching up with his backlog of cases.
