
Brittany McCauslin Biography 2014

Brittany is a senior year veterinary student at Colorado State University. She earned a Bachelor of Science from Oregon State University. While at Colorado State, she has developed a strong interest for organized veterinary medicine, and is involved with the American Veterinary Medical Association. After a summer internship between first and second year in Washington, D.C., Brittany is excited and hopeful to pursue a career in legislation or regulation both domestic and abroad. Her passion is bridging the gap between science and values by helping policy makers and legislators connect the dots involving laws, regulations, and policy to animal health. She has been a member of USAHA since August of 2012.
